WE ARE INVITED!

Attend a program about Green Buildings. Reduce, Reuse and Recycle.

In the past decade the above terms and many more have been given new meanings and interpretations when we talk about our built environment. What does it all mean to our citizens and how can we encourage the greening of our communities?

Learn more as you enjoy a good movie on Tuesday, November 15th at 7:00 p.m. at the Establishment Theatre (former Capri Theatre), 220 19th Street in Rock Island. The Rock Island Preservation Society invites everyone to a free showing of the hour-long PBS documentary, "The Greenest Building." Produced by Jane Turville, it premiered last January in Portland, Oregon and has won several awards.

With examples of green buildings for all uses – and how they were made and what makes them green - the hour-long movie offers strategies for those who would lead greener lives. There are short interviews with architects, preservationists, developers, bankers, and environmentalists.
Narrator David Ogden Stiers pulls it all together by underscoring the important role of buildings in creating sustainable communities.
